

JOB VACANCY

Closing Date: Until Post Filled

Fixed-term 1-year contract starting July 2015 or as soon as possible following this with possibility of extension.

KM Music Conservatory Pvt Ltd, Chennai, India

A vacancy exists for a full-time teacher of Violin, to teach across a range of programmes from Preparatory (beginners) to Diploma (undergraduate) level and also to work on our outreach programme The Sunshine Orchestra with underprivileged children . KM Music Conservatory was founded in 2008 by A. R. Rahman, the Indian film composer known worldwide for the award-winning Slumdog Millionaire score amongst other work. The Conservatory is still growing but currently delivers a number of taught courses, amongst which are the Foundation and Diploma programmes validated by Middlesex University, UK. We are housed in a newly re-engineered, purpose built, state-of-the-art, centrally air-conditioned facility at the Arumbakkam area of Chennai in Southern India.

JOB DESCRIPTION

Job Title: Faculty for Violin

Reporting To: Outreach Programme Head & Executive Director

Salary: Equivalent US$25,000 / Annum [Pro Rata for Employment Period]

- Teach group master classes for students of various performance disciplines and occasionally assist in delivery of other related music courses as skills allow.
- Assessing student performances

- Contributing to the search for and development of innovative methods of teaching, learning and assessment as part of KMMC's learner-centred approach to education
- Choosing appropriate repertoire for individual and ensemble teaching

Academic Advice:

- To give advice and guidance to students to support their musical/academic progress at KMMC. This entails acquiring a broad understanding of the philosophy and operation of the programme structures, an understanding of the assessment regulations and procedures and some knowledge of the rules, content and operation of Programmes and Units in related subject areas.
- Teaching classes as appropriate as part of the Full Time programmes of education which may include sight-singing, musicianship and general music theory.

Administration:

- To occasionally assist others in the administration of any other KMMC units in which the post-holder is involved.
- To occasionally advise on or create order lists for instruments, music and other resources
- To become acquainted and proficient in using the administration software provided for student attendance monitoring and reporting

General:

- To participate in staff development activities as and when they are arranged.
- To attend meetings and committees as appropriate.
- To undertake any other duties at KMMC as shall be reasonably requested. This may occasionally include performing and/or (in the case of pianists) accompanying.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

The Preparatory Programme, which is part-time, currently has over 150 registered students. Courses focus around weekly individual lessons and the basics of general musicianship and theory. It leads students towards entry to the Full-Time programmes if they wish to pursue that route.

The Middlesex University programmes are the Foundation course (1-year, full-time) and the Diploma course (2-year, full-time, an undergraduate course designed as a pathway to a final year at Middlesex University in the UK). The first cohort of students completed the Diploma programme in July 2012 and many continued onto completing the Bachelors programme at Middlesex in London. In addition to the Western Music components of the course, Hindustani music also forms part of the curriculum. KM Music Conservatory is the only music education institution in South India offering this combination with UK validation. There are currently around 70 students on the Foundation course and approximately 40 across both years of the Diploma but this number is expanding. The majority take voice, piano, composition or percussion as their Western practical first study. Some play a second instrument.

KM Conservatory is currently housed in Arumbakkam since August 2013. There are two principal lecture theatres equipped with projectors/screens, studios for individual instrumental and vocal tuition, smaller seminar rooms for group classes and a number of smaller rooms used for practice. There is WIFI internet in all teaching and administrative areas. The campus also houses a professional studio, audio-technology suite, an indoor and outdoor auditorium, a growing library of musical resources and a computer lab. There are also active subscriptions to the Naxos online music recording library and to JSTOR for academic articles.

The brainchild of A.R. Rahman, the Sunshine Orchestra project has identified, selected and trained more than 60 students from economically underserved sections of the society, otherwise having no access to music instruments, training or guidance. These students have undergone rigorous training on western classical music from various legends in this field. Today, these young musicians are on their way to becoming experts in the field of orchestral performance, with some of them already performing with various professional ensembles. The project aims to train more than 200 such students in the next two years.
